DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 4 and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gallant in view of Garceran et al (US006522888B1).

Regarding claim 4, Gallant discloses a system and method for consistently translating a Special Dialing String (SDS) or a Mobile Feature Code (MFC) in a wireless telecommunications system based on mobile subscriber and/or geographic information (see column 3, lines 12-22), which reads on the claimed, "method of accessing from a mobile telephone one of a set of services stored in a telecommunication network associated with said mobile telephone," and, "determining said service by the geographical location of said mobile telephone and a service request including a short-code number supplied by a user to said mobile telephone, wherein the short-code number identifies a single service in a given geographical area.” The system includes multiple MSCs (see figure 1), which reads on the claimed, “said telecommunication network including a plurality of control stations wherein the mobile telephone connects to only a single one of the control stations at any time.” Gallant fails to disclose each of said control stations stores a set of services in a respective local database not local to other control stations of said telecommunication network.

In a similar field of endeavor, Garceran et al disclose a system where a database may be local to the MSC (see column 7, line 66 – column 8, line 30).

It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify Gallant with Garceran et al to include the above database local to the MSC in order to reduce the storage needed in a centralized database.

Regarding claim 10, Galant discloses a system and method for consistently translating a Special Dialing String (SDS) or a Mobile Feature Code (MFC) in a wireless telecommunications system based on mobile subscriber and/or geographic information (see column 3, lines 12-22), which reads on the claimed, “control station in a telecommunication network including means for communicating with a set of mobile telephones further including means for implementing a method of accessing from a mobile telephone one of a set of services,” and, “in which method said service is determined by the geographical location of said mobile telephone and a service request including a short-code number supplied by a user to said mobile telephone, and the short-code number identifies a single service in a given geographical area.” The system includes multiple MSCs (see figure 1). Gallant fails to disclose each of said control stations stores a set of services in a respective local database not local to other control stations of said telecommunication network.

In a similar field of endeavor, Garceran et al disclose a system where a database may be local to the MSC (see column 7, line 66 – column 8, line 30).

It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify Gallant with Garceran et al to include the above database local to the MSC in order to reduce the storage needed in a centralized database.
